Kickoff Celebration

Saturday, February 1, 2020

11am

Connie Morella Library
7400 Arlington Road, Bethesda

Count the ways you love the library this February during Library Lovers Month, a month-long celebration of libraries around the country. This year's theme is "Libraries By the Numbers."

FOLMC will host a family-friendly Library Lovers Month Kickoff with Bradley Fields, who will present "Math Magic." Free tickets will be available 30 minutes before the program. Space is limited.

MCPL provides a variety of resources and offerings year round that help foster a love of science and exploration. It also provides a stimulating environment to celebrate mathematics and develop numeracy skills. Branches and FOLMC Chapters will host special events and activities to celebrate math all month long.

You can also tell us why you love your library. Just fill out a postcard while at your branch or share a photo on FOLMC's Facebook, Twitter or Instagram pages (be sure to tag #ILoveMyLibrary and #LibrariesBytheNumbers).

Visit www.folmc.org for more information about the kickoff event and other Library Lovers Month activities. Library Lovers Month Kickoff is sponsored in partnership with the Montgomery County Library Board and Friends of the Library, Connie Morella Chapter.

Inspiring a Future Generation of Library Lovers

I first met Jamar Foster at an advocacy potluck at the Germantown Library that he attended with his mother. I immediately noticed his tall stature which made me ask his grade. He was a high school freshman, Jamar told me, and an avid lover of books—biographies, especially Oprah, Barack Obama, and the U.S. presidents.

Not long after our meeting, Jamar applied for the position of student representative on the FOLMC Board of Trustees and was overwhelmingly recommended. The position had a lasting effect.

I recently spoke to Jamar, who informed me that he is now living in Boston and attending Harvard University. "My experience with FOLMC started me on my path to Harvard," he said. "In interviews it was a great conversation starter. People were intrigued to know about my board experience as a young person."

FOLMC has encouraged the participation of young people on the board for more than 20 years. Student representatives act as an extra set of eyes and ears, providing advice on their library experience and how library services and programs can best meet their needs. This year's FOLMC student representative is Maraki Solomon. We are delighted to welcome her and know that she will make a significant mark on the organization in the coming years (no pressure, Maraki).

How can more young people get involved?

If we want to sustain libraries, we need to reach our youngest library constituents, not only to develop their interests but also to empower them to give back. We can do this by encouraging teens to take on leadership roles and seeking their input on library programming and the library's collections.

What are some other ways you can involve a teen in our library community?

**Give a donation in honor of a teen in your life. As part of our community, they will receive a FOLMC membership card, the latest FOLMC news and events, and special discounts at our two used bookstores.

**If you run a youth group in a church or synagogue, you could help organize a book drive, and donate them to our used bookstores. We've written before about Eagle Scout William T. Camut – he collected several thousands of books and served as a role model for others to follow.

**Bring your teen to a YA-focused program at the library like MoComCon, the MCPL Comic Convention, which takes place every January, or our own Vinyl Record Day Festival, which takes place in April.

**Teachers or media center specialists could register your students to participate in our Mosaic Program, designed for middle school students. Its winners are published in an anthology which is added to MCPL collections.

Drop us a line at staff@folmc.org to let us know other ways you are inspiring young people to get involved—and give back—to our libraries. You never know what great things will happen next!

Please note that in conjunction with the opening of the new Wheaton FOLMC Bookstore, the Silver Spring FOLMC Bookstore (8901 Colesville Road) has closed.

The Rockville FOLMC Bookstore (4886 Boiling Brook Parkway) is open for business as usual and is going through a reorganization, so please pardon our appearance.

We always welcome donations during business hours. Donations larger than two (2) boxes should be taken to the Rockville FOLMC Bookstore (4886 Boiling Brook Parkway). Call ahead of time for donations of more than 10 boxes at once.

Staff Spotlight Suzanna Dickson

Growing up in Gaithersburg, I've lived in Montgomery County for most of my life. My parents worked weekends when I was a child. My mother worked as a page for Montgomery County Public Libraries and so, until we were old enough to stay home alone, my brother and I would spend four hours every weekend at the library. While my parents always, always encouraged us to read, I credit those weekends as the start of my passion for books.

I've always had a peripheral awareness of FOLMC through the library branches, knowing FOLMC volunteers took donations at the libraries and ran the in-house used booksales. I learned about the bookstores and scale of FOLMC's support of MCPL much later. I started working as a page with MCPL five years ago to supplement my full-time retail job. This year a friend and library co-worker, married to one of FOLMC'S bookstore clerks, told me there were job opportunities with the bookstores. I jumped at the chance and here I am, delighted to have 50 percent of my work week dedicated to books.

Working multiple jobs, I don't have nearly as much time to dedicate to hobbies as I would like. Reading has been relegated to work breaks and any kind of wait I do on my own, and so I keep a book with me always. I started fishing again this year, remembering why I loved the activity so much as a kid, though I do recall being much more successful in my youth. In an attempt to return to a daily workout regimen, I've picked up boxing again after a two-year break. Nothing relieves stress quite like wailing on a heavy bag.

We welcome Suzanna and invite you to find your next page-turner at our award-winning Bookstores in Rockville and Wheaton.

Board Spotlight Lynn S. Abrahamson

When did you move to Montgomery County?
What do you like about it?

Montgomery County has been home since 2012. The diversity and cultural assets of the area are my favorite characteristics – as well as the many restaurants!

Why did you decide to join the FOLMC board?

An American Public Health Association article sparked my interest in libraries. A 2016 Pew Research Center survey found that 38% of people who use libraries sought health care information. As a nurse (University of Pennsylvania alum) and a public health professional (University of Connecticut grad), I was looking for a way to contribute to the broader community and support hard-to-reach populations.

What's a fun memory of a library?

Finding the latest Nancy Drew book, taking it home and discovering under the covers late at night how she solved mysteries.

What do you like to read now? What's on your nightstand?

Novels that offer insights into human behavior are my favorite books. Anne Tyler is my favorite author. I also read the newspaper, health care journals, and People magazine regularly. Currently I'm reading Housekeeping by Marilynne Robinson, a book about three generations of women and their challenges navigating through life.

What's a fun fact about you?

I was a high school exchange student in Brazil. This experience helped me embrace different cultures and perspectives.

How did you hear about FOLMC?

After volunteering with the Friends of the Library, Gaithersburg Chapter, I learned about the value of libraries as a trusted resource and access point for many community members. Serving on the FOLMC board seemed like a logical next step.

What do you enjoy most about volunteering with FOLMC?

I enjoy being able to support a vital community institution as well as fostering the writing skills of middle school students as a Mosaic Contest judge.

From the Library Director

Anita Vassallo, MCPL Director

I am extremely honored to have been appointed the Director of Montgomery County Public Libraries (MCPL), and I look forward to leading the wonderful staff of our system in providing innovative, exceptional service to all members of our community.

I have worked throughout the library system in many different positions, beginning at the tiny Four Corners branch, my home library growing up in the Woodmoor area of Silver Spring. I have seen the library system, library services, and the profession itself undergo radical changes over the course of my career. I am proud of how MCPL has risen to the challenge of evolving to stay relevant to the residents we serve. The core mission of public libraries has always been to provide the resources that people need to live an informed and fulfilled life, and although methods and materials may have changed, that mission remains at the heart of all we do.

I so appreciate the support of the Friends of the Library, Montgomery County and its chapters. Your generous funding has enabled MCPL to implement many new and exciting initiatives, while your advocacy continues to highlight the critical role of public libraries in our community.

I pledge to do my best to continue the tradition of great community service established by my predecessors, and I hope to have opportunities to hear from many of you about how we, working together, can best serve you, the residents of Montgomery County.

Chapter Spotlight

CONNIE MORELLA

President: Joan Greenbaum

Have you seen the new mural at Connie Morella Library? "Literary Dogs and a Few Cats" measures 40 feet long by 5 feet tall and is located behind the circulation desk. The mural was created by Chevy Chase-based artist, Kathryn Freeman, and was unveiled this summer. Ms. Freeman used fluid acrylic paint to create the mural on a continuous canvas scroll. It took four people to install it.

Photography by Tim Tiebout // www.timtiebout.com

The mural, which celebrates dozens of famous four-legged friends in popular literature, includes Lassie, Old Yeller and Big Red in poses of rest or play. What other literary animals do you see?

The dedication ceremony, sponsored by Friends of the Library, Connie Morella Chapter, which took place in July, featured remarks by Councilmember Andrew Friedson, Maryland State Senator Susan Lee, and Maryland State Delegate Marc Korman. "What a great example of books and art coming to life and of the talent and treasures we are so lucky to have here in our community," Councilmember Friedson said. Be sure to see it for yourself!

A New Name for Bethesda's Library

Many people remember it as the Bethesda Library, but the branch was renamed after former FOLMC Board Member, politician, and former U.S. ambassador Connie Morella in 2018. The library also underwent a refresh and now features new self-checkout kiosks, new information and circulation desks, LED lighting, a brighter, lighter color scheme, and renovated bathrooms. Additional improvements were made to the building's infrastructure, including replacing the roof. The sidewalk and parking lot were also updated.

Upcoming Events at Connie Morella Library

On Saturday, February 1, 2020 at 11am, the Friends of the Library, Connie Morella Chapter is excited to host Bradley Fields' "Math Magic." This is the kickoff event to Library Lovers Month, and the theme is "Library by the Numbers."
